Goodfellow Hall and Commons

Campers dancing in Goodfellow Hall

1947

Goodfellow Hall, named for Mary E. D. Goodfellow, was used for folk dancing and parties by Bowen County Club. Goodfellow left a bequest which helped to build the recreation hall adjoining the Commons in 1914. Goodfellow Hall served as a symbol of the fun and activities that carried on at Bowen County Club.

The Commons next to Goodfellow Hall had a large dinning room and included a screened-in porch, gazebo, kitchen, and a vegetable room. The Commons was built in 1912. Helpers at the camp slept on the second floor of the building.
